Candidate wants name cleared

Cyber-harassment case. Alleged victim asks for publication ban to be lifted on his name

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

One of the alleged Ottawa victims in an international cyber-harassment case is coming out of the shadows and into the light to protect his reputation in the municipal election.

Roland Stieda — a candidate running to replace Coun. Rainer Bloess in Innes Ward — is one of 18 people who are alleged to be victims of a malicious online cyber-harassment campaign.

Robert Campbell, 42, is facing 181 charges stemming from an extensive police investigation into complaints of cyber-harassment. Ottawa police charged Campbell on Aug. 1 with 27 counts of criminal harassment, 85 counts of defamatory libel and 69 counts of identity fraud.

Of the 38 complainants from Canada, the U.S. and the U.K., 18 are from Ottawa, police said.

In an interview with Metro on Aug. 1, Steida alleged Campbell created fake email addresses and social media profiles to spread lies about him to co-workers and other people he knew. The cyber-harassment dates back to 2002, he said.

In court Thursday, a justice of the peace agreed to the Crown's request to have Stieda's name removed from a list of alleged victims whose names cannot be published. As the Oct. 27 election draws nearer, Stieda said the move was a precautionary one in case a potential voter comes across a defamatory email from the past.

"I just want to make sure that if there is anything else out there, people bring that forward to police," Stieda told Metro Thursday. "If anything was sent to a BIA and they looked at this and they thought, 'Wow, this guy's nuts. There's no way I could possibly support him,' (it's) basically besmirching my reputation, so to speak, right in the middle of a campaign."

The names of the other 37 alleged victims are still protected by the existing publication ban.

Stieda said he isn't worried about having his name attached to the case while running an election campaign. "If people hear about that, it doesn't really say anything about me. It's not like I'm charged with anything."

Campbell made a brief court appearance by video link wearing an orange jumpsuit and was remanded into custody. A defence lawyer said she is still waiting on disclosure from the Crown.

Campbell is scheduled to return to court on Aug. 12.

Ottawa woman gives dire warning to pet owners

Caution. Beloved dog dies from apparent poisoning

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

An Ottawa woman whose dog apparently died after it ingested a poison is warning other pet owners to be on the lookout when they take their furry friends for a walk.

Liz Ciesluk said her 13-year-old Shih Tzu, Peppino, died last week after she took Peppino for a walk near Britannia Park in the west end. She doesn't recall seeing her dog eat anything from the ground, but said within hours, her dog fell seriously ill.

"By the time I brought him to the vet, that was Tuesday, he was like a noodle in my arms. He was just completely limp," said Ciesluk. "Just as I called (the vet), he excreted blood. It was grainy, black, red blood. It was a mess."

Despite Dr. Richard Murray's efforts at Britannia Heights Veterinary Clinic, Peppino died the following day.

"I went into shock. I had no idea that would happen," she said. "There was so much poison in his tissues, there was nothing we could have done to save him."

Ciesluk believes her dog ingested a substance similar to rat poison. A receptionist from the vet clinic that treated Peppino told Metro doctors are still unclear from the autopsy what caused him to die.

Ciesluk went to the police station Thursday to file a complaint, but an officer told her it was not a criminal offence and no other similar complaints had been filed about poison in the park, she said.

Liz Ciesluk she says believes her dog Peppino ingested a poison during a walk near Britannia Park before it died last week and is warning other pet owners to be careful. CONTRIBUTED

"I think that having the police report will give some sort of warning if there is somebody trying to poison the raccoons, the skunks, or the geese that they should be aware of the fact that they can poison our pets and children," she said.

Landlord fined $75K for fire code violations

Blaze damage at 371 Gilmour St. in 2013. COURTESY OTTAWA FIRE SERVICES

An Ottawa landlord has pleaded guilty to several fire code violations at 16 of its rental unit locations across the city and now faces a $75,000 penalty, Ottawa Fire Services say.

The Ottawa Fire Services said Saickley Enterprises Ltd. was hit with 120 convictions against eight defendants after the company pleaded guilty on July 24 to the charges under the Fire Protection and Prevention Act.

The fire service inspected several of its properties across the city after it investigated a highrise fire on March 12, 2013, at 371 Gilmour St. A man caught in that fire reportedly jumped from the second- or third-storey window and was sent to hospital in serious condition.

The court imposed a $60,000 fine against the landlord in addition to a $15,000 victim fine surcharge.

OFS spokesperson Marc Messier said violations included failure to illuminate exit signs, obstructing a door, and failure to review fire safety plans.

Saickley Enterprises' lawyer, Vincent Clifford, said in an email to Metro the corporation took immediate steps to rectify the violations once notified and said all of the identified properties are "up to code."

"The buildings were, and remain, safe for all residents. The Saikaley (sic) group of companies remains diligent in maintaining a high standard of safety, and continues to work in a cooperative manner with the Ottawa Fire Department," Clifford wrote.

Ottawa innovators. Gearing up for 'greatest show and tell on Earth' at Mini Maker Faire

trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

Underground entrepreneurs are gearing up for "the greatest show and tell on Earth" at this year's Ottawa Mini Maker Faire Aug. 16-17.

Innovators young and old will be showing off their garage projects — everything from Frisbee-tossing robots and custom Halloween masks to computer-controlled paper cars and impressive Lego structures created by Ottawa's master builders.

"It's almost like a high school science fair, but on a larger scale," says Remco Volmer, program manager at Artengine, the company putting on the showcase.

"It allows people of all crafts — tinkerers, inventors, hackers, makers of all kinds — to showcase what they are working on."

The Ottawa Mini Maker Faire began in 2010 when it became the first Canadian city to host it since the event launched in San Francisco in 2006. Several other Canadian cities including Toronto, Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver have since jumped on board.

Many of Ottawa's top tinkerers got their start at Artengine's weekly drop-in night Mod Lab, where innovators come together to share ideas while utilizing the centre's equipment like 3D printers and laser cutters.

"There is a great community of tinkerers around town," adds Volmer. "Some of them love to take apart an arcade game and just rig it to play their own games or are making small robots in their garage."

This year's event will feature about 60 creators who will be spread out across the Museum of Science and Technology.

The event takes place Aug. 16 and 17 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Drink-mixing robot

'The perfect martini'

Jeff Molson loves martinis.

In fact, the 46-year-old electrical engineer loves a perfect Dry Manhattan so much that he's built a robot, Martini Bot, to mix his drinks for him.

And it's so accurate that he claims it makes the "perfect martini."

"This thing is so accurate," says Molson, showing off his two-foot robot that will eventually mix up to 19 different martinis with 10 different ingredients.

"It's theoretically perfect. I really like martinis."

All partiers will have to do is turn a dial, pick their drink of choice and voila! He isn't sure if he will have to deal with belligerent patrons at house parties more often than usual with Martini Bot around.

"I'm not sure if it's a good thing or a bad thing. I am sure people will drink a lot more," he laughed.

Molson will be showing off Martini Bot at the Museum of Science and Technology Aug. 16-17 during the Ottawa Mini Maker Faire.

Daft Punk-inspired helmets

By day, Charles Bergeron is a third-year software engineering student at Carleton University, trudging his way towards a degree.

But by night, he turns into Guy-Manuel de Homem-Christo — or one-half of the popular French electronic duo Daft Punk.

Bergeron has spent the summer designing custom LED Daft Punk replica helmets and the results are uncanny.

"I wanted to have some sort of a summer project and I always thought it would be cool to have a Daft Punk helmet," said Bergeron, working on the helmet at the Ottawa Arts Court.

He's making a few minor tweaks to the gear for the upcoming Ottawa Mini Maker Faire and hopes to have both masks — that of Christo and Thomas Bangalter's — on display for the event.

The helmet is cast out of plastic and features a colourful and electrifying LED light show that is fully customizable and programmable. It will eventually be battery-powered to make it more mobile. He even plans to incorporate a Nintendo Wii motion sensor that makes it respond to motion.

Since school is out for summer, he plans to make a big splash when all his techie friends return to class in the fall.

"I am keeping it a secret from my engineering friends, so I am going to reveal it at a party in a few months," he says.

Bergeron will be showing the helmets off at the Museum of Science and Technology for the Maker Faire Aug. 16-17.

Surrogacy targeted in drafted Thai legislation

Thailand. Government moves to ban surrogate pregnancies after child with Down syndrome was allegedly abandoned

Thailand pushed to ban commercial surrogacy Thursday as a case involving nine surrogate babies allegedly with the same Japanese father emerged only days after a furor over the alleged abandonment of a surrogate-born baby with Down syndrome.

The discovery of the nine babies being cared for by nannies in a Bangkok condominium followed accusations by a Thai surrogate that an Australian couple had left the boy with Down syndrome to be raised by her, while taking home his healthy twin sister. The scandal has focused global attention on the largely unregulated industry in Thailand, which authorities say became a go-to destination for commercial surrogacy after well-off countries tightened their own laws.

Officials said Thursday that the draft of a law banning surrogacy was submitted to the junta's head of legal and justice affairs and will be forwarded to the interim legislature for consideration next week.

"Now is good timing, as the steps (toward passing the law) have been completed," said Rarinthip Sirorat, of the Social Development and Human Security Ministry, "The purpose of this law is to give maximum benefits to the surrogate babies."

According to the draft, the new law would prohibit commercial surrogacy and those violating the law will face up to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $6,200 US. Agencies, advertisers or recruiters of surrogate mothers will face up to five years in jail and a fine of up to $3,100 US.

Jury convicts U.S. man in teen's death

A jury convicted a U.S. man of second-degree murder and manslaughter on Thursday after he shot a drunk, unarmed black woman in the face on his porch last year after she pounded on his door. It rejected his claim that he was afraid for his life and had acted in self-defence.

Theodore Wafer shot Renisha McBride through a screen door on Nov. 2, hours after she crashed into a parked car near his house. No one knows why she ended up at the home, although prosecutors speculated that the 19-year-old may have been seeking help.

"She just wanted to go home," prosecutor Patrick Muscat said during closing arguments, holding the shotgun Wafer used to kill McBride. "She ended up in the morgue with bullets in her head and in her brain because the defendant picked up this shotgun, released this safety, raised it at her, pulled the trigger and blew her face off.''

Wafer, 55, who had been free on bond, was also convicted on a gun-related charge and was ordered to jail to await his sentence. He could face up to life in prison with the possibility of parole, but it is likely his sentence will be much shorter.

Beginning with Florida in 2005, at least 22 states have expanded the self-defence principle known as the "castle doctrine," the premise that a person has the right to defend his or her home against attack.

The laws make it easier for a person to shoot someone and avoid prosecution by saying they felt an imminent danger.

Tribunal convicts two leaders of Cambodia's Khmer Rouge

Reign of terror. By 1979, which saw the end of the fanatical Khmer Rouge movement, nearly a quarter of the country's population was dead

They were leaders of Cambodia's infamous Khmer Rouge, the fanatical communist movement behind a 1970s reign of terror that transformed this entire Southeast Asian nation into a ruthless slave state — a place where cities were emptied of their inhabitants, religion and schools were banned, and anyone deemed a threat was executed.

When the nightmare ended in 1979, close to two million people were dead — a quarter of Cambodia's population at the time.

On Thursday, a UN-backed tribunal convicted two of the once all-powerful men of crimes against humanity in the first and possibly the last verdicts to be issued against the group's aging, top members.

Although survivors welcomed the decision to impose life sentences against Khieu Samphan, an 83-year-old former head of state, and Nuon Chea, the movement's 88-year-old chief ideologue, they also say justice has come far too late and is simply not adequate.

"Nothing can compare to the immense suffering they imposed, no sentence can be enough," said Youk Chhang, who heads the Documentation Center of Cambodia, which has collected more than a million documents related to the Khmer Rouge terror.

There was no visible reaction from either of the accused when the decisions were announced. Defence lawyers insisted the case was not over and vowed to appeal within 30 days.

Summarizing the verdict, chief judge Nil Nonn said the defendants were part of "a joint criminal enterprise" that launched "a widespread and systematic attack against the civilian population" after Khmer Rouge guerrillas seized Phnom Penh on April 17, 1975.

Former Khmer Rouge servitors Soum Rithy, left, and Chum Mey embrace each other on Thursday after the verdicts were announced, at the UN-backed war crimes tribunal in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. HENG SINITH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The case, which lasted about two years, focused on just one of many mass killing sites and the forced exodus of millions of people from Cambodia's cities and towns, where even hospitals were emptied of patients.

ZMapp. 'Virtually no doses' of experimental drug available for Africans

Africans seeking a drug to help contain the Ebola virus will have to wait months before an experimental treatment used on two infected Americans is produced even in small amounts, officials said.

And there are no guarantees that the medication known as ZMapp would help curb the spread of the dreaded disease, which starts with a fever and body aches and sometimes progresses to serious bleeding. Supplies of the drug are limited. It has never been tested for safety or effectiveness in humans.

The health minister of Nigeria, one of the four countries where Ebola has broken out, told a news conference in his country that he had asked the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention about access to the drug. A CDC spokesman said Wednesday "there are virtually no doses available."

The lack of wider availability "shows simply that white patients and black patients do not have the same value in the eyes of world medicine," said Nouridine Sow, a sociology professor at the Universal Institute of Guinea.

Ebola virus

The outbreak first emerged in Guinea and spread to neighbouring Sierra Leone and Liberia before reaching Nigeria. Almost 1,000 people have died since March.

But testing an unproven drug on a large population carries risks. Earlier this week, the CDC director emphasized that it's impossible to know whether ZMapp helped the sick American aid workers.

"Until we do a study, we don't know if it helps, if it hurts or if it doesn't make any difference," Tom Frieden told a health symposium in Kentucky.

Some health experts fear that debate over extremely limited supplies of the drug will distract from more tried-and-true practices. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The craft beer boom

'Golden age'. Are microbreweries a fad that'll fizzle out or a business that'll replace beer-making behemoths?

Breaking into the beer biz

Starting a microbrewery takes skill, and perhaps a bit of liquid courage. Granville Island Brewing Co. (GIB) in Vancouver has managed to stay in the beer biz for 30 years and counting. Here's some key ingredients for brewing up success.

- The lightbulb moment: In the early '80s, Mitch Taylor and Bill Harvey were inspired by the beer culture in Germany and Belgium and decided to try to bring it to British Columbia.
- Do your homework: The pair embarked on years of research, visiting microbreweries in the U.S. and Germany. They also got to know the main stakeholders.
- Have laser focus: The duo decided to focus on offering premium bottom fermented lager beers aged for several weeks in cold pressurized tanks, sold in draft in bars. They also made GIB available in bottles in local restaurants and stores.
- Build a cult following: In 1984 GIB was born, focusing on a German lager beer to gain a loyal local fan base.
- Stay true to your roots: While GIB is now owned by Molson Coors Brewing Co. it remains small and in B.C.

Tom Green's first sips of beer came courtesy of his dad, Richard — sort of.

"When you first start drinking," the Canadian comedian recalls in a phone interview with Metro, "you sneak whatever your dad has in the fridge."

Growing up in the nation's capital meant sneaking the nation's top brands, namely Molson's Export and Canadian, and Labatt's 50 and Blue.

When he started buying his own beer, the funny man considered himself a bit of a connoisseur. "I always went towards the craft — Rickard's Red and Alexander Keith's, good Canadian beers," says Green, who now lives full-time in L.A.

Back in the 1980s and '90s, choice was limited. New microbreweries started, then went flat fast. These days, the options are seemingly endless. There are saisons for patio season, pumpkin ales come fall, stouts for the holiday season and maple syrup concoctions in the spring.

We are currently in a "golden age" of craft beer, says Joel Manning, the brewmaster at Mill Street Brewery in Toronto, who has been working in the business since 1986.

Over the past four years, he says, an average of one new microbrewery pops up in Ontario each month. It's a similar story across the country, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia.

Hopped up on going local

Green teamed up with Beau's All Natural Brewing Co. in Vankleek Hill, Ont., a one-light town about an hour east of Ottawa, to make and sell The Tom Green Beer.

The beer bottles, bearing a beautiful illustration of the comedy legend with one eyebrow cocked, seem like an elaborate prank. But it's actually a serious award-winning milk stout, inspired by the milk gags Green used to pull on his Rogers cable access show before he hit the big time.

It's this attention to detail of what's on, as well as in, the bottles that has led the father-son team of Tim and Steve Beauchense to big-time success.

Beau's (a shortening of their surname) launched on Canada Day in 2006 and is now served in about 1,200 restaurants and sold in roughly 400 Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) stores.

"This is part of the local food movement," says Steve, explaining the phenomenal growth of his certified organic brewery. "People want to have authentic food and beer."

Drinking beer has always seemed as authentically Canadian as ice hockey and maple syrup. But cracking open a few cold ones actually peaked in the Great White North in 1975 at 106.50 litres of beer per capita. By 2010, consumption had dropped to 73.86 litres per capita, with many opting for wine instead, according to Statistics Canada.

But beer is still the No. 1 alcoholic beverage for Canucks, with many now choosing a microbrew. Sales of craft beer have increased by 1,800 per cent to approximately $50 million over the past 10 years, according to a spokesperson with the LCBO. In B.C., sales from breweries producing less than 15,000 hectolitres have more than doubled since 2009 to $67.9 million, reveals a spokesperson with B.C.'s liquor distribution branch.

It used to be men, like Green's dad, would buy "yellow, fizzy beer" by the case, for life, from the dominant Canadian brands. "Most people now have 10 to 12 beers on rotation," says Manning.

The big guys react (or not)

Molson has woken up to this sobering reality.

The iconic brand, started by John Molson in 1786 in Montreal, has heavily relied on nationalism to build loyalty. The average clean-cut Joe reciting the 'I am Canadian' rant in a plaid shirt in the early 2000s was the Platonic ideal of the Molson customer. Then, Canada's brewery merged with American behemoth Coors to form Molson Coors Brewing Co. in 2005.

While Canadian guys in 2014 are still partial to plaid, the young ones also tend to have a craft beer from a local brewery in their hands. This shift led Molson Coors to set up a craft beer division in 2011, after acquiring two top microbrewers — Ontario's Creemore Springs and B.C.'s Granville Island Brewing Co. Molson Coors had about 39 per cent of the national market and had net sales of $4.21 billion US worldwide in fiscal 2013, according to company reports.

Meanwhile, Labatt Breweries of Canada is sticking with its tried-and-true formula — largely staying away from the move to stronger flavoured beers. The brewer, founded by John Labatt in 1847 in London, Ont., eventually merged with Belgium-based brand Anheuser-Busch InBev in 2008. Canada's No. 1 brand is a hair ahead of Molson with about 40 per cent of the market, according to a company report.

It's a never-ending party?

Men and women of all ages are seeking out the next big thing. Beer has shed its stereotypical hoser image, immortalized by Bob and Doug McKenzie on 1980s comedy show SCTV.

CanLit goddess Margaret Atwood has a gruit ale (herb and berry-infused) with Beau's. Rock god Sam Roberts has a "session ale" with Toronto's Spearhead Brewing Company. Hipsters with nothing more than a home brew kit and a dream are giving it a go. The money is flowing, but so is the hubris.

The story of Mill Street starting as "three guys and a truck" in 2002 is intoxicating, but Manning warns some upstarts won't make it. Small outfits can have issues with quality control and some lack a basic understanding of the business side.

The Beauchesnes have been able to steadily build their brewery by mixing the father's business background, with the son's passion for the product. Having a national comedy treasure hock his eponymous beer on Jimmy Fallon's TV show last year didn't hurt, either.

Beau's is now available in New York state and there are plans to expand into Quebec.

Success is giving microbrewers a nice buzz, but is the trend close to tapped out?

"The popularity of craft beer is still growing," asserts Green. "People like original things."

Raise a glass of (craft) beer and cheers to that.

Bidding hits $80K for Sam Sung's business card

Tech giant rivals Apple and Samsung may have dropped their ongoing patent disputes outside of the U.S., but that isn't stopping fans from engaging in a bidding war for the coveted last business card of a former Vancouver Apple Store employee named Sam Sung.

As of Thursday morning, online bidding for a framed and autographed presentation of Sung's last Apple business card, T-shirt and lanyard, which he is auctioning off for charity, surpassed a shocking $80,200 US on eBay. THANDI FLETCHER/METRO IN VANCOUVER

Canada aims to lure 'brilliant' immigrants

Jason Kenney. America's troubled immigration system is an opportunity to 'aggressively' court top talent to come here

Stalled immigration reforms in the United States are an opportunity for Canada to scoop up a wealth of young, "brilliant" foreign nationals and direct them into burgeoning tech-sector employment, the federal employment minister said Wednesday.

Minister Jason Kenney heartily endorsed his government's efforts to entice educated immigrants north of the 49th parallel as a direct counter to American policy obstacles to settling down there after earning highly prized degrees. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Russia strikes back with sanctions of its own

Halifax. Rogues to Riches for board game designer?

It's a project 12 years in the making, but Sam Fraser's board game is finally ready to grace tables all over the world.

Once known as Gentlemen Thieves and now called Rogues to Riches, the game was designed by Fraser and has been on the market in Halifax for the better part of two years. Now, Fraser wants to take it around the world through a crowdfunding campaign on Kickstarter. The goal is $16,500 over 35 days, enough to manufacture at least 1,000 copies of the game, says the Haligonian. METRO IN HALIFAX

Web. Google uses its clout to push use of encryption

Google is wielding the power of its dominant Internet search engine to push more websites into protecting the people using their services.

The move involves a change in Google's closely guarded formula for determining the rankings of its search results.

Websites that automatically encrypt their services will now be boosted higher in Google Inc.'s recommendation system. Encryption will remain a small factor in Google's ranking formula, but it may put greater emphasis on the security measure in the future. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentina seeks to sue the U.S.

Argentina is seeking to sue the United States at the world court over U.S. court rulings that last week forced the Latin American country into a default.

The International Court of Justice, commonly known as the world court, said in a statement Thursday it has received a request from Argentina to take on the case. There is a major hurdle, though: The U.S. must agree to grant the international court jurisdiction if the suit is to proceed.

In a statement, the Hague, Netherlands-based court said Argentina's filing asserted that U.S. court rulings amount to "violations of Argentine sovereignty."

The dispute stems from a U.S. court's order for Argentina to pay in full a group of bondholders led by a New York hedge fund who refused to accept lower payments for restructured bonds following the country's default in 2001. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SORRY MRS. CARTER NO BANGER

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Time once again for the list-to-end-all-lists: The Metro List. Here's what's causing the Earth to chase its tail this week:

1 Alison Redford, We Hardly Knew Ya. Memo to self: Double-check those expenses. It's hard to believe, but Alison Redford, who had it all, still wanted more, and even created fake fellow airline travellers to help herself to a few extra taxpayer dollars, according to the provincial attorney general. So now she's the ex-premier of Alberta, and this week, out of politics altogether. It's still the same old story — greed kills.

2 The Ballad of Jay-Z and Beyoncé. Looks as if pop music's power couple is running out of gas. Even though they've been married for six years, the usual reliable sources report that on their current tour they've been staying in different hotels, and the tour entourage includes four lawyers, two each. It doesn't take four lawyers to make sure there is the right number of M&Ms in the backstage bowl. On their latest stop in San Francisco, they made an effort to play nice and stay in the same hotel at least, but no word yet on whether the release of diss track Sorry Mrs. Carter by model/rapper Olivia McFallar changes anything. McFallar, a.k.a. Yes Liv Can, denies the rumour that she is Jay-Z's mistress in the rather confusing tune, though she claims it wasn't from Hov's lack of effort. Stay tuned.

3 Suck It Up, Comrade. Russian President Vladimir Putin, annoyed by sanctions from the West, has banned food imports from Canada, the U.S., the European Union, Australia, Norway, etc. Meat? Nyet! Fish? Nyet! Fruit and veg? Nyet. Dairy products? Also Nyet. Putin must be counting on nostalgia for the good old days when the average Russian stood in line all day for turnips and vodka. Hope they've got a lot of vodka.

4 Not So Long Ago, Not So Far Away. The Star Wars franchise has officially been fully Disneyfied. Disney announced this week that both its theme parks, California's Disneyland and Florida's Disney World, will get major Star Wars additions. No details yet, but does that mean the future will no longer be represented by Tomorrowland and Epcot Center, both permanently frozen in time (1959, to be precise)? Who's your daddy, Luke?

5 Products of a Deranged Mind, Number 37. Hey, workout fans, a U.K. company has developed a device that allows you to track the number of calories you burn during sex, plus the number of, um, thrusts per minute. It's called SexFit and it fits around your boy bit, vibrating while it collects data. Then you can download the app and share your stats with other ridiculous narcissists. It's a prototype at the moment, and with any luck, it will remain so forever. Going for the burn just got weird.

Confiscated stuffed animals are on display during a news conference in Carson, Calif., Wednesday. U.S. Customs and Border Protection officers seized nearly $9,000 worth of stuffed-and-mounted animals.
NICK UT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe they shouldn't have marked the would-be contraband 'animal heads'?

Federal customs officials at the Port of Los Angeles have seized about $9,000 worth of mounted and stuffed wildlife "hunting trophies" that lacked proper export permits.

The collection was on display Wednesday during a news conference at a Carson warehouse. The items, packed in seven boxes as part of a consolidated shipment declared to be household goods, were confiscated July 23. "Animal heads" was written on one of the boxes.

Investigators said at least some of the items were purchased from a liquidator in Texas by a 44-year-old man from the Philippines who was in the United States for the first time with his wife and two children on a family vacation.

Officials said the man is co-operating and is not believed to have been aware of the needed permits. The items will probably be donated to zoos, universities or other schools for educational uses, officials said.

THE DAILY BREEZE

The goods

- The collection included a bear skull and full-body mounts of a bobcat, a lynx with a bird and a baboon, all four of which are protected species.
- Other specimens included deer, kudu and impala antlers and horns, shoulder mounts of a goat and a zebra, a wildebeest, an African antelope, African gazelle, two smallmouth bass and an alligator.

Rummu is an abandoned Soviet-era prison that also served as a forced labour mine near Tallinn, Estonia. In a rare example of poor Soviet planning, it turns out all of that mandatory mining left the quarry prone to flooding from underground waters. And that's exactly what happened, transforming what was once a hellish crime against nature into one of the most unusual and beautiful beach bum meccas we've ever seen. It's probably totally spooky when the sun goes down, though. (XL-Studios/YouTube)

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Helen Mirren plays an icy French chef in The Hundred-Foot Journey. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

The Hundred-Foot Journey is a feel-good movie about an Indian family who moves to a small town in France to open a restaurant. Across the street is a Michelin-starred French eatery run with an iron fist by Madame Mallory (Helen Mirren). Cultures and personalities clash, but soon Hassan Kadam's (Manish Dayal) talent leads him on a journey. First he crosses the hundred feet between the restaurant his father (Om Puri) owns to Madame Mallory's kitchen, then to Paris and ultimately to his real passion.

The Hundred-Foot Journey. The story runs a little bland at times, but Indian actor Om Puri adds some fine flavour

Richard: Mark, the last time director Lasse Hallström went all Food Network on us, the result was the 2000 bonbon Chocolat, a comic story with a bittersweet edge. He's revisiting similar ground here, mixing gastroporn, good old-fashioned romance and cross-cultural farce.

Despite its predictability, The Hundred-Foot Journey's collection of characters keeps things lively and amusing and the food looks so good you'll wish the movie was in Smell-O-Vision.

I thought it was an enjoyable film about passion; the passion for food, passion for culture but most of all, passion for life. What did you think?

Mark: Richard, I wouldn't use the word passion to describe this movie. It was full of warmth, and it glowed from the sun-dappled shots of the French countryside to the sun-dappled shots of the delicious food to the sun-dappled shots of Helen Mirren's profile contemplating Septuagenarian sex.

But passion? If this movie about food were a food, it would be a nice custard, served at room temperature.

RC: Perhaps there wasn't passion of the Gordon Ramsay style, but I thought the characters, particularly the young leads, brought enthusiasm not only to their romance but to their rivalry as well.

As Marguerite, Charlotte Le Bon moves beyond simply playing the romantic counterpart and puts herself and her dream of being a chef first. I liked that she was spunkier than you often see in a movie like this. Ditto Mirren.

As Madame comes to respect and then like her new neighbours, her ice queen demeanour slowly melts, allowing the actress to subtly reveal layers of character.

MB: None of them impressed me Richard, not even Mirren.

The one actor that did blow me away was the great Indian actor Om Puri, whose name even sounds like a fine dish, served with a side of raita.

I didn't find much that surprised me in the script either, although I wasn't expecting the young Indian chef to cross the road and work at Mirren's classical French restaurant.

Whether or not you see him as a contemptible sellout or not probably depends on your attitude towards fusion cuisine.

RC: Tone-wise this movie reminded me of The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel.

It may not be the most original movie to hit screens this summer, but I liked the characters and left the theatre hungry for more.

MB: I just left the theatre hungry. The vindaloo has the best part.

Batman V Superman film release bumped up

Superhero showdown.
Warner shifts date to avoid competing with Captain America

Ben Affleck, left, and Henry Cavill are Batman and Superman in the new Batman V Superman movie. GETTY IMAGES

To avoid going head to head with Captain America 3 in theaters, Warner Bros has decided to shift the release of Batman V Superman: Dawn of Justice forward by more than a month.

Initially, both films were set to hit theatres on May 6, 2016, meaning that the superheroes would have given each other some serious competition at the box office. Since Disney refused to change the date of its next Captain America movie, Warner Bros revised the production timeline on its DC feature and announced the new release date of March 25, 2016.

Now rather than clashing directly with a rival superhero, Batman and Superman will be in theatres at the same time as Paramount's Beverly Hills Cop 4 with Eddie Murphy, which is due for release on the same day.

If Warner Bros wants to give the best chance possible to Batman V Superman, it's partly because of the high expectations surrounding its superhero franchises in general. The studio recently announced the provisional release dates of 10 new DC Comics movies set to debut between 2016 and 2020.

What comics?

Warner has provisional release dates for 10 new DC Comics movies between 2016 and 2020. Rumour has it the lineup will include Justice League movies, a sequel to Man of Steel and even Aquaman.

Aubrey is all about the brains

Aubrey Plaza, star of the new zombie rom-com Life After Beth, is a liar.

When asked if it is possible to overthink her approach to a character she says, "I'm not very smart to begin with, so I can't overthink anything. If I'm thinking about something, that's a big deal for me."

Liar, liar, pants on fire.

Actually, the New York University's Tisch School of the Arts graduate, best known as April Ludgate on Parks and Recreation, is a secret smarty-pants with a well thought-out career path.

"Most scripts I read feel wrong to me just because they're not good," she says. "I tend to try and do things that are scary to me because otherwise I'll just get offered the same thing over and over again, and who wants to see that ... except for everyone."

Life After Beth offered up something different and a little scary. Plaza says the story of Zack (Dane DeHaan) and his recently deceased girlfriend Beth (Plaza) who refuses to stay dead is a metaphor "for a breakup and how when you break up with someone, it's like they die. Then you try to get back together with them and you only remember the good things. Or you turn that person into a monster. There's all kinds of ways you can look at the movie."

The 30-year-old actress says, "I like make-believe which is why I like movies and like making them and making people believe that I am good at that," adding that she always had "grand delusions" of a career in film.

"I had really weird taste when I was little," she says. "I was really into Judy Garland and Bette Midler. I had a sophisticated gay man's taste at an early age."

Katie Holmes finds it hard to play it flat

The Giver. Actress had difficulty going against the urge to emote in sci-fi tale about a utopia with no pain

Katie Holmes is the first to admit that she found the idea of playing one of the citizens in the sci-fi allegory The Giver a bit of a head-scratcher as far as acting exercises go.

"It was a really challenging role to play because it's this utopian society, this alternate reality. There's no emotion, there's no pain, there's a great deal of security and safety, but to play that as an actor is interesting because we like to emote," she says.

"They don't have any emotions, but I think that they're human after all, so I always believed that the characters were capable of love."

Of course, the pedigree of the project — based on Lois Lowry's award-winning, best-selling young adult novel — didn't hurt. "I heard about the project and I heard it was (director) Phil Noyce and Jeff Bridges and Meryl Streep," she says. "I was not familiar with the book, so I read the book along with the script and I thought it was a really powerful story."

While it's been 16 years since Holmes shot to fame barely out of her teens on Dawson's Creek, the actress has no regrets about finding success so early. "I feel really lucky for all the opportunities that I've had. I think it's great to start young because you learn the business quickly. It's exciting," she says. And she still keeps up with her co-stars, she insists. "I just saw Michelle (Williams) in Cabaret. She's amazing in it," Holmes says of her Dawson's Creek co-star's current Broadway gig.

Speaking of Broadway, professionally Holmes has been a bit quiet since Batman Begins nine years ago — popping up in an odd mix of projects every year or two like Don't Be Afraid of the Dark, The Kennedys television miniseries and Adam Sandler's dubious Jack and Jill — but fans closer to New York City know that she's been keeping plenty busy with stage work, recently playing on Broadway in All My Sons and Dead Accounts. And if Holmes has her way, that won't be the end of it.

"It's just different. It's a different experience, but they're both very satisfying professionally," she says, comparing theatre and film work."

The Giver opens next Friday.

A thespian's wish

What else would Holmes like to do in theatre? "I'd like to do The Cherry Orchard. I'd like to do Dollhouse," she says.

Katie Holmes and Alexander Skarsgard star in The Giver. CONTRIBUTED

Surgeon saves lives the low-tech way

The Knick. Hospital drama set in 1900 stars Clive Owen as brilliant but drug-addicted doc

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Clive Owen, centre, and Eric Johnson, star in The Knick, a 1900s hospital drama premiering Aug. 8 on HBO Canada. CINEMAX

Clive Owen may have started out on television, but he hasn't appeared on a series since 1996's Sharman — save for a hilarious self-parodying cameo on Extras for Ricky Gervais.

Still, Owen respects his TV roots, including his first breakout role on the British series Chancer in 1990.

"I did a lot of television when I was young, and that was the first big series," he says. "That series got me going, really, and sort of launched me, and I had a great time with it.

"I did two seasons of that and, at that particular time in my life and my career, I decided I wanted to do other things and keep things as sort of mixed and varied as I could. I went off and did other things — theatre, smaller films."

Small films like Croupier, Gosford Park and Children of Men. Certainly nothing to sneeze at.

Now, almost 25 years later, Owen is happily taking to the small screen with The Knick (premiering Fri., Aug. 8 at 11 p.m. ET/MT on HBO Canada), playing Dr. John Thackery, lead surgeon in New York's Knickerbocker Hospital in the early 20th century.

What brought him back? Well, being directed by Steven Soderbergh didn't hurt.

"Steven called me up when he had the first script, and he told me he was thinking about a 10-part television series. I've known Steven sort of, you know, for a number of years, and I'm a huge fan of his," Owen explains. "But the reality is, as an actor, when you come across a piece of material that sets you alight and reminds you of why you do what you do, that's the be-all and end-all. The fact that it's 20 hours of television, all it means to me is that I'm lucky enough to be involved in something that I'm very passionate about."

Dr. John Thackery

"He's a very complex, difficult character. He's kind of redeemed by the fact that he's brilliant and he's passionate."

Clive Owen, The Knick
Describing his role as Dr. John Thackery

Owen admits he didn't always feel that way, given the time commitment — and that was even before the 10-episode series became a 20-episode series.

"To be honest with you, before I started reading the script, I wasn't sure I wanted to commit to 10 hours of television playing the same part," he says. "I was shooting something else, sitting in a trailer. I started to read the script to get a taste of what it might be like and, 40 minutes later, there was no way I was not going to do it, because it was such a beautifully written script and such an amazingly original part. I was never not going to do it."

Part of that appeal is the role of Thackery, an ambitious, pioneering surgeon with a few substance abuse issues bringing him down.

"He's not a sort of leading character that's going to take people by the hand and lead them gently through a medical drama set in 1900," Owen says.

"He's a very complex, difficult character. He's kind of redeemed by the fact that he's brilliant and he's passionate. He's about trying to forward the whole world of medicine and trying to save people's lives and, ultimately, you know, providing a huge service to people, generally. But he's a very difficult, complicated, functioning addict at the same time.

"It's kind of challenging, and I personally, as an actor, love the challenge of taking that on."

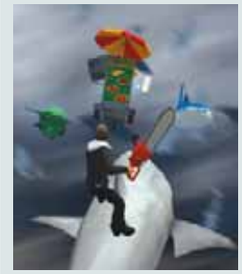
As cheesy as the movie, but with little gore, this endless obstacle course has you running, bouncing, surfing, and chainsawing your way past chomping sharks and into the tornado itself.



Video game review

Name. Blood Bowl

For. PC/Xbox 360/iPad/ Android

Rated. Teen 13+

Imagine football players on a chessboard and you get the idea. This is a slow, thoughtful strategy game where silly-voiced orcs deliver consequences that are more comical than macho. Over-the-top announcers and "Bloodweiser Babes" create a fun environment, but as a faithful simulation of the board game, it's thick with rules and dice rolls. It's impressive the way tablet users can play against PC users online and the campaigns offer a deep system to build and improve your own team. It's complex, but nerdy fun. KRIS ABEL

Prince William's got a brand new day job

Prince William is taking a new job: Air ambulance pilot.

Britain's royal officials announced yesterday that starting in September, the royal will train for about five months as a helicopter pilot with East Anglian Air Ambulance.

If successful, he will join the charity group, based in Cambridge, next spring.

The stint will be William's main job, although he will continue to take on royal duties and engagements.

His duties will include flying day and night shifts, and working with medics at emergencies ranging from road accidents to heart attacks.

"The pilot is part of the team and he will be looking after patients with conditions that would be horrifying for many, and some pilots may not like that very much," says Alastair Wilson, the charity's medical director.

"Compared to his role as a search-and-rescue pilot, he may be dealing with more injury patients than he is used to, but I'm sure he will adapt very well to that."

The job will build on William's experience as a Royal Air Force search-and-rescue pilot, a position he qualified for in 2012 after serving other military duties.

He left that job last September, shortly after his and wife Kate's first son, Prince George, was born.

William will be paid a salary for the new job, which he will donate in full to charity, officials say.

The Word

Heigl blames motherhood, not writers, for Grey's goodbye

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Katherine Heigl is looking to rewrite history in her ongoing image rehabilitation efforts while promoting her new TV series, State of Affairs.

The former Grey's Anatomy star now insists she left the popular medical drama not because of dissatisfaction with the writing, but because she didn't like being a working mom.

"I felt like my priorities were messed up. I was putting so much time and energy into just my work, but I was raised (to believe) that family comes first," Heigl tells Us Weekly.

"I would come home angry and frustrated that I'd missed everything with my kid that day. I didn't get to wake her up from her nap or do bath time or bedtime. I'd have to sneak into her room and kiss her when she was sleeping, hoping not to wake her up."

All perfectly valid reasons, granted.

But she seems not to realize that all the stuff she used to say — like, "I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination" — is actually written down somewhere.

Clooney to wed Alamuddin in Italy, banns confirm

The wedding is on, apparently, as George Clooney and Amal Alamuddin have posted the legally required wedding banns at London's Chelsea Town Hall, indicating they're planning to get hitched imminently, according to People magazine.

A spokesman at the register office at London's Chelsea Old Town Hall confirmed Thursday that the couple posted a legal document for a British national who is marrying abroad. A photo of the notice published by the Daily Mirror showed the pair's names, ages and occupations. It also showed they plan a wedding in Italy. The document was taken down after being on display for the requisite 21 days.

It is the second marriage for Clooney, 53, and the first for Alamuddin, 36. WITH FILES FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lohan ignores sober pals while partying in Europe

Lindsay Lohan

Lindsay Lohan's sober pals are worried about her, which would seem to be standard operating procedure for Lindsay Lohan's sober pals.

This time, it's because she is ignoring their text messages and phone calls while she parties across Europe, according to Radar Online.

"Lindsay has abandoned her friends and her sober community. She stopped responding to our texts and calls and is basically ignoring everyone now. She's getting the texts because they show up as read. She's just not answering," a source complains. "Some of these people have been friends with her for more than a decade. There is nothing anyone can do until she answers."

Though it makes as diverse a selection of wines as any part of Italy, the north-eastern region of Veneto is best known for its reds, with the viticultural area of Valpolicella arguably as famous as Tuscany's Chianti in the minds of wine lovers.

Typically bright and refreshing, the table wines from Valpolicella are easy-drinking and grill-friendly.

Where things get interesting is when winemakers dry grapes (a process called appassimento).

The output of the raisin-like fruit creates richly textured wines called amarone (drier), recioto (sweeter) and ripasso (a wine fermented with the grape mass left over from the production of the other two).

Masi Agricola pioneered many of the techniques used in making wines from dried red grapes and is trying them out on white wines. Its 2012 Masianco Pinot Grigio & Verduzzo ($15.00 - $18.99) blends freshly picked grapes with some that see a light drying. The result balances ripe aromatics with citrusy flavours and makes a perfect match with grilled white meats and fresh fish. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. Cherry Tomato Tart.

Instead of standing in a hot kitchen, spend time with your guests

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

I love to impress my guests, and I also love to spend time with them. Because I don't want to waste hours in the kitchen instead of enjoying their company, I assemble this recipe ahead of time.

You can replace the feta cheese with a ball of fresh mozzarella, sliced. In this case, you may need to season with a bit more salt. You can also substitute the rectangular tart pan for a pie plate that's 1 inch (2.5 cm) deep and 9 inches (23 cm) in diameter.

Pastry

1. In a food processor, pulse the flour and the butter until the butter is the size of small peas. Add the milk and pulse until a ball begins to form. Remove the dough from the processor and shape into a square with your hands.

2. On floured work surface, roll out the dough into a 16 x 6-inch (40 x 15 cm) rectangle. Line in a 14 x 4-inch (35 x 10 cm) rectangular tart pan. Place in freezer for 15 minutes.

3. With the rack in the lowest position, preheat the oven to 400 F (200 C).

Filling

1. In a bowl, combine the milk and cornstarch with a whisk. Whisk in the eggs and herbs. Lightly season with salt and pepper. Pour into the crust. Sprinkle with the cheese. Carefully top with the tomato clusters. Bake for about 25 minutes or until the filling is firm and lightly browned.

2. Let cool for 10 minutes. Remove the tomato stems before serving. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION LAUNCHING THIS SEPTEMBER!

Ingredients

Pastry
- 1 cup (250 ml) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 6 tbsp (90 ml) cold salted butter, diced
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) cold milk

Filling
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) milk
- 1 tsp (5 ml) cornstarch
- 3 eggs
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped fresh chives
- Salt and pepper
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped fresh basil
- 3/4 cup (180 ml) crumbled feta cheese
- 6 oz (180 g) cherry tomatoes on the vine (about 18 tomatoes)

This recipe makes about 13 cookies. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Brownie, meet cookie

1. With rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line two large baking sheets with parchment paper.

2. In a bowl, combine the flour and baking powder. Set aside.

3. In a bowl over simmering water or in the microwave oven, melt chocolate and butter. Let cool to room temperature.

4. In another bowl, combine eggs and sugar with whisk. Combine with chocolate mix, then stir in the dry ingredients.

5. With 2 tbsp (30 ml) ice cream scoop, spoon approximately six balls of batter on a baking sheet, spacing them evenly. Bake, one sheet at a time, about 10 minutes. Let cool on baking sheet.

Brownie Ice Cream Sandwiches

1. Place a 1/4-cup (60 ml) scoop of vanilla ice cream on a cookie. Cover with a second cookie and press lightly. Cover the sandwiches individually in plastic wrap. Freeze for 48 hours to allow the cookies to soften.

Simple ways to transform a student bedroom

DIY. Head back to campus with fresh decor ideas for your home-away-from-home

I Want That

If you're looking for more fantastic home addition ideas, tune in to a special one-hour presentation of I Want That on Sunday, Aug. 10, at 10 p.m. ET/PT on DIY Network Canada.

As September approaches, many students beginning or returning to campus life will face the challenge of making a dorm or sub-leased room feel anything like home. Some easy-to-create, personal decor and design is all it takes to turn a dull, small space into a stunning and comfortable sanctuary for year-long study survival.

String lights

One of the easiest ways to establish gorgeous bedroom lighting is with plain or coloured string lights. Whether hung along walls and ceilings, threaded into reused bottles to make beautiful lamps, or shaped into wall signs, the soft glow can help brighten your mood on even the toughest days.

For a more dazzling look, create a curtain by gluing small mirror tiles along a series of strings, drape the string lights in behind, and watch the whole room shimmer.

Mason jar lamps

Another great lighting tool is a mason jar. To create a simple hanging lamp, drill a hole in the top, fit a single light bulb socket inside the lid, and secure the cord.

Alternatively, put your favourite kind of candle in the jar, or decorate the inside with glow-in-the-dark paint to create amazing night lights.

Design your own quilt or blanket

While the colour of the walls or provided furniture might already be predetermined, personal touches can be added all around the room. Instead of using a generic bed comforter, consider designing a quilt or blanket made from old t-shirts or your favourite materials.

Add personality to a blah dorm room with our easy DIY decor ideas. ISTOCK

Crafty curtains and wall art

If the window curtains are too plain, look for a design that speaks to you at the fabric store, or consider looking for paint-safe adhesive to create fabric wall art with.

Picture this

To enhance your desk space, look for a sleek bulletin board and office supplies, such as post-it notes, in your ideal colour scheme to stay organized. Don't forget to include photos of loved ones and important events in your theme. Think about picking out a variety of picture frames, or arranging photos into a shape of your choosing on the wall.

Just remember to get creative, personalize as much as possible, and have fun!

Lawrie lost until Sept., Jays GM says

Brett Lawrie is out of the lineup again, leaving the Toronto Blue Jays to continue their quest for a playoff spot without their starting third baseman.

After just coming back from a six-week absence with a broken finger, Lawrie will now be out until at least September, general manager Alex Anthopoulos said Thursday after placing him on the 15-day disabled list. This oblique injury is on the same side but is not the same one that caused the 24-year-old to miss time last season, though that doesn't mean he'll be back any time soon.

Raonic rolls while giants fall in Toronto

Rogers Cup. Canada's final hope moves on after top-seeded Djokovic and Aussie Open winner Wawrinka fall

Canada's Milos Raonic advanced to the quarter-finals at the Rogers Cup on Thursday with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 victory over Julien Benneteau of France.

The sixth seed from Thornhill, Ont., used his impressive power game to his advantage on a comfortable, breezy evening at Rexall Centre. Raonic showed off his booming serve to take the first game at love and his punishing ground strokes gave Benneteau trouble throughout the match.

There were two upsets earlier in the day at the Masters 1000 series tournament. Jo-Wilfried Tsonga of France defeated top-seeded Novak Djokovic of Serbia 6-2, 6-2 while South Africa's Kevin Anderson upset third-seeded Stan Wawrinka of Switzerland 7-6 (8), 7-5.

With a near-capacity crowd cheering him on, Raonic had little trouble in the opening set. He was pushed to deuce at one point but a volley winner and 221 km/h service winner gave him the hold and a 4-3 lead.

In the following game, Raonic landed a scorching forehand in the corner to set up a break point and took the game when Benneteau made an unforced error. He closed out the set when the ball struck the net tape and softly landed on Benneteau's side.

The Frenchman was more aggressive in the second set and it paid off with a pair of service breaks. Benneteau broke for a 4-2 lead but Raonic answered with a break of his own to get back on serve.

With a 5-4 lead, Benneteau earned another break point and forced a deciding set when Raonic's volley found the net.

Raonic wasn't fazed and swept the first four points for an early break. He had another break opportunity at 4-2 but Benneteau held to stay within a game.

The Frenchman fought off three match points in the penultimate game before Raonic closed it out on his serve to complete the win in one hour 47 minutes.

Raonic will next play either fourth-seeded Czech Tomas Berdych or Spain's Feliciano Lopez.

Earlier, Djokovic was unable to settle into his usual rhythm and it proved costly against Tsonga. The 13th seed from France needed only 63 minutes to complete a resounding 6-2, 6-2 victory.

Multi-champion under the sticks at Anfield joins Ottawa's NASL franchise as goalkeeper coach

Former Liverpool star Bruce Grobbelaar has joined Ottawa Fury FC as the North American Soccer League team's goalkeeper coach.

The South African-born 'keeper spent 13 seasons at Liverpool, winning six league titles, three FA Cups, three League Cups and the European Cup in 440 appearances for the storied club.

"Bruce is a fantastic addition to this staff and will help everyone in this club be better," Fury FC head coach Marc Dos Santos said in a statement Thursday. "Our goalkeepers will benefit from this addition. The experience and knowledge that Bruce brings to his role will be of great benefit to Ottawa Fury FC."

ARCHANGEL
PSYCHIC SPIRITUALIST
REAL TESTIMONIAL
I am very thankful for the healing ARCHANGEL provided me. I was suffering from an ailment that no one else could identify, not even the doctors. But when I came to ARCHANGEL he saw the spell on me that someone had done it to my parents a long time ago. Now, I am free of all the evil.
– SILVIE CURTOISE
• I know how to resolve the difficult and impossible
• Return your beloved, no matter the distance or circumstance
• I treat any type of sickness or negative influence
• Through the angels, archangels and cherubs, I purify homes and businesses of any evil
• I reveal your enemies to you

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You are a rebel by nature and with the Sun linked to Uranus, planet of upheavals, this weekend you will do something outrageous. It may not do much for your rep but you'll have fun.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
It may seem as if the odds are stacked against you but the planets suggest you can easily break through any obstacles that are in your path.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You get a kick out of being different and will upset those you consider to be too conservative in their thinking. But when you dish it out you have to be ready to take.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
A craving will reach a peak today and if you want peace of mind you'll have to acknowledge your desires and do what you can to satisfy them.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will meet interesting people this weekend. To you they may look a bit mad, but maybe from their point of view you look the same!

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You may not be the most adventurous member of the zodiac but you the Sun's link to Uranus, planet of surprises, will inspire you to move out of your comfort zone.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There is no point discussing what you want to do with loved ones because they are sure to try to make you change your mind. Do what feels right.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Some of the best partnerships are between people who appear to have little in common, so don't turn down an invitation just because it's from someone you find weird.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
This is the perfect time to take chances and make changes. There may be occasions when you push your luck too far but no harm will come of it.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Usually you are careful with what you say but over the next 48 hours you will go right the other way and say exactly what you think and feel. Others will find your frankness refreshing.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Upheavals are to be expected but they won't be too bad. They may even turn out to be good if you look for ways to take advantage of them.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
A wonderful idea will occur to you and you won't be satisfied until you have done something with it. Don't worry that it does not seem "logical" because you have more than five senses.
